

Letter from the State Veterinarian.

The following letter is self-explanatory:

STATE VETERINARIAN'S OFFICE,
TOPEKA, KAN., Feb. 16, 1885.

CHAS. H. GIBBS, Esq.,
Wa-Keeney, Trego co., Ks.,

DEAR SIR:—Your favor of the 13th inst. at hand. In reply I have the honor to say that your description of the worm of the liver is satisfactory evidence that you have not the "fluke" disease. The reason I had inferred that possibly "flukes" might exist in these lambs, was the assurance from prominent sheep men in Osborne and Russell counties that they had found "flukes" in their sheep, together with the tape worm of the intestines. True, they have never furnished me any of the "flukes," yet I am not in a position to deny that they may be right. I am trying to get further evidence. I will lay the matter before the governor, and endeavor to make a personal investigation, for if the "fluke" disease does exist in Kansas, it is a matter of serious importance. I know of no treatment more simple than that prescribed * that will do much good. One or two doses would relieve most of the cases—rarely are more than three doses required. The fast is not absolutely necessary, yet it insures better results. Feeding copperas (Ferri Sulph. exsicc.) with the salt is a good plan—one part of the iron to about 10 of salt. I have never seen any good results from the use of pumpkin seeds.

Yes, green grass will do good, but one trouble is that you are not in a fair way to rid your range of the worm—a very important consideration for your future welfare. Pools, of course, are much more dangerous than running streams and wells.

I would continue the feeding of salt, ashes and iron, together with the best of feed. Old sheep are not, as a rule, seriously injured by these tape worms.

Hoping I may be permitted to visit you soon, I am sir,
Your most obedient servant,
A. A. HOLCOMBE.

* TAPE WORM REMEDY.

3 pounds common salt, 1/2 pound ginger, 1/2 pound salt petre. Dissolve in 3 gallons hot water, to which add 24 ounces of oil of turpentine. Give from two to three ounces of the mixture to each sheep in a half pint of gruel made of flour and water, after a fast of 18 hours.

Use Correct Terms.

National Live Stock Journal.

THOROUGHBREED—This term refers to the famous breed of English race-horses; sprung from the Arabian Godolphin, and perfected into the model type now known the world over as "Thoroughbred," and which has served as the principal foundation for the best American horses. It is, consequently, not correct to speak of any other horses, cattle, or other stock as thoroughbred, not because they may not be thoroughbred in the ordinary meaning of the word, i. e., thoroughly well bred, but because the term has, by common consent and usage, been adapted to a particular breed of horses.

PURE BRED—This is the proper term to use in speaking of purely bred cattle. Hypercritical persons may object that there are no pure-bred animals in the strictest sense of the term, as all animals trace back to stock that is not pure bred. For all practical purposes, it is sufficient to say that "pure bred" may be applied to designate animals eligible to record in the herd or stud books of their respective breeds, and the term, when used in this country, should be understood as meaning eligible to record, the rules of which are more stringent in some particulars than those of the English books.

NATIVE—This is a term frequently misapplied in speaking of cattle and other stock. All animals are "natives" that are not imported, and every day a larger proportion of our native stock is pure bred, whereas the term as generally used is made almost synonymous with scrub.

GRADES—This term is properly and very generally understood to cover all animals resulting from a cross of scrub with pure bred stock. It has, however, not infrequently been applied to cross-bred animals, and in this respect a bad example has been set by the premium list of the American fat stock show.

CROSS-BRED—This term speaks for itself, and has not been, fortunately, corrupted into any meaning but that which it bears upon its face, namely, the produce of a cross between two pure breeds.

SCRUB—This term is very well understood and seldom misapplied, the only possible confusion being between it and the term "native." The term is generally understood, however, to include not only animals of inferior merit, but animals of no breeding, even though they may be animals of very fair merit, and we see no particular reason why the term should not be used thus comprehensively, inasmuch as animals of no breeding should never be used for purposes of reproduction. A correct use of terms is important, as in all cases where we speak, or write on the same subjects it is more desirable that the terms used by all should be understood by all in the same sense.

One more term there is, "imported," which, of course, means just what it says, and is unobjectionable. The only thing to be said about it is that there may be some danger of attaching too much importance to it, and giving it a significance which it possesses to-day, merely that of including only pure-bred animals. This is probably the case to-day, simply because it will not pay any one to import any stock except it be pure bred, unless in the case of a dishonest importer, who proposes to represent his stock to be what it is not, and just what these gentry would like to have an overweening importance attach to the term "imported."
